Our Vision Statement

St Peter's Church Leckhampton
exists to love and worship God, to serve our neighbours and to pass on the faith in Jesus Christ.

The Parish Prayer

Loving God
Open our eyes that we might see you.
Open our ears that we might hear you.
Open our hearts and minds that we Might respond to you and bring others to know you.
We ask this in the name of Jesus Christ
Our Lord who lights our way.

Gary writes.....

What is the Future of St. Peter's?

How would you answer that question for the medium and long term?

The Parochial Church Council (PCC) will be meeting this autumn to think about this very question and to review the vision for St. Peter's for the next 5-10 years.

A vision is a picture of what you want to achieve. It's your dream.

There has been a church on this site since 1132 AD, probably longer, and the building has served God's mission locally throughout that time, and we should rightly give thanks to all who have faithfully ministered here and supported the life of the parish over the many years.

The 'church' is, however, much more than just the building and the different services that are held there, although St Peter's is a very special place for so many.

What is the special part that St. Peter's can play in God's mission of love and the reason for its existence?

Once we have agreed the vision, a mission plan can be built to explain how it can be achieved; this will include aims and objectives, actions, owners, timescales and benefits.

We can then think about how we make it a reality.

In advance, we will conduct an audit of church resources, but I would also like the whole church community to contribute and start thinking about the following questions:

- What is the purpose of St. Peter's?
- How does the church connect with the community?
- Are we making the most out of our resources? If not, what's stopping us?
- How do we engage children and young people?
- What is the style of worship? Is this enough?
- How can St. Peter's bring more people to know the love of Jesus Christ?

Do look out for a more detailed on-line questionnaire, but also drop me an email with your thoughts at revgarygrady@btinternet.com

'Notes from the Director of Music'

It has been wonderful returning to choral services since September, and we are now firmly into autumn as we enter October! We have been delighted to welcome some new members of the choir - adults and children - and this has resulted in the need to purchase some new choir robes and put out some extra chairs to accommodate them all too. What a wonderful dilemma to have - and long may that continue!

We have some fantastic music coming up this month. This includes the beautiful, modern anthem 'Fill your hearts with joy and gladness' for the morning of Harvest by Sarah Quartel. The following Sunday sees the choir perform Gibbons anthem 'Almighty and Everlasting God' - a wonderful Tudor anthem. Following that, given that we are in the 100th anniversary year since the death of Sir Charles Villiers Stanford - we are going to perform one of his anthems 'How beautiful are the feet'. This starts lyrically, but - given the words are all about Saints - it builds to a triumphant conclusion. Stirring stuff! The final anthem this month is a setting of familiar words that we sing as a hymn 'Be thou my vision'. This is a setting by the modern composer, Bob Chilcott, and is a wonderfully crafted piece - enjoyable to sing and beautiful to listen to.

On the first Sunday of the month (Sunday 6th October), we are singing a full choral evensong to celebrate Harvest. The music will include the Preces & Responses by Radcliffe, the Canticles in Bb by Stanford, and a majestic anthem - 'Thou O God art praised in Sion' by Malcolm Boyle. It starts with a grand organ introduction, matched by powerful choral singing by the full choir. The middle of the piece sees the trebles and sopranos singing a lilting, beautiful section for the words 'Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace', before the anthem concludes in triumphant fashion as per the start of the piece. Very exciting! We will welcome a few additional singers to our ranks (already enlarged with our new members...), so do come and listen to us and enjoy the fully choral offering of this ancient liturgy.

Dr. Kit Perona-Wright Director of Music

Econews

We are in Creationtide, or the Season of Creation, which lasts until St Francis' day on 4th October. While celebrating the positive side with the Harvest Festival, let us not forget the negative. Here is an extract from the Diocese of Gloucester news:

'Something more than gentle nurture is needed, as we seek to minimise further damage created by the expectations and lifestyles of western society. We cannot continue to waste in the way that we do, to pollute the atmosphere, to destroy the homes of our fellow creatures, or to use energy in ways that are catastrophically warming the planet. We need to take these things as seriously as we do any other commitments we make as part of our faith. To be Christian is to consider the needs of others – other people in parts of the world most affected by climate change, and wider 'others' in God's wider Creation.'

We are reminded by Pope Francis that all creation is connected, and he encourages us to undergo an 'Eco conversion'. We must be more aware of our links with nature and how we can learn from the natural world.

Forthcoming event with Rowan Williams, former Archbishop of Canterbury, and Pete Atkin, former Radio 4 producer and singer/songwriter.

Title: Words and Music, Poems and Songs – Rowan Williams and Pete Atkin in Conversation and Performance

Date and Time: Friday October 4th 2024. 7.00 to 9.00pm

Venue: St Andrew's URC, Montpellier Street, Cheltenham

Time: 7.00 to 9.00pm

Interval: for refreshments

Ticket Price: £12.00 (£6.00 for Under 25) Phone 01242 522658 to book or scan QR code on poster in St Peter's Church.

Rowan Williams will be known to many. Pete Atkin's name is not so familiar, perhaps, but for many years he had a critically successful song writing partnership with the poet Clive James; a relationship to which both returned in the latter years of James's life.

Bishop Rachel on prison reform – an exclusive for The Messenger

“Prisons have been in the headlines a lot this summer. The criminal justice system is on its knees with overcrowding. Victims of crime are not being well served by this system and prisoners are leaving jail without having been rehabilitated.

“Most people simply see prison as punishment and accept the popular narrative that locking people up will make our streets safer, even though the evidence does not support this.

“I do not believe we are asking the right questions. We need to consider what prisons are for, and how we build stronger communities.

“People often talk about the revolving door of prisons because those serving short sentences for often non-violent crimes, often return to custody within a year. Going to prison for less than a year rarely offers rehabilitation but does huge damage to family ties, housing and job prospects.

“We’ve seen so called ‘swift justice’ following the riots and unrest in many communities this summer. While people do need to bear the consequences of their actions, we surely want to be enabling the creation of stronger communities and I don’t believe that sending many of the offenders to prison will achieve this, but will simply lead to greater fracture, which will not be good for victims, offenders, families and wider society.

“Neither will it address many of the underlying issues. We need to be much more creative and put resources into more and better community sentencing as well as looking upstream.

“As Anglican Bishop for Prisons, I hope for a better system, and it is a privilege to visit prisons, hear people’s stories, and thank committed chaplains and prison officers who make such a big difference. Many faith communities and charities already help resettle prison-leavers into the community as well as facilitate alternatives to custody which tackle addiction and help people turn their lives around.

“If we believe that at the heart of the gospel is reconciliation and transformation, then Christians are well placed to get involved with prison and probation work, including welcoming prison leavers to our worshipping communities. There is much more that can be done.”

The Welcome Directory

When people are released from prison, they often find themselves in need of community. While many people are able to find or renew their faith while they are in prison, sadly only 1 in 5 people go on to join a faith community when they are released.

The Welcome Directory helps worshipping communities to safely connect with prisoners who are released and offer a safe space without judgement or rejection. Being welcoming, accepting and safe can transform people's lives and help them to build confidence as they rebuild their lives.

If your worshipping community is interested in applying to be part of the Welcome Directory, visit www.welcomedirectory.org.uk.

Holding the key podcast: Marc Conway shares how IPPs take away hope Bishop Rachel has released the third episode of her podcast series, which discusses the purpose of prison sentences and the possible alternatives.

Bishop Rachel is the Anglican Bishop for HM Prisons in England and Wales. In this podcast she spoke with Marc Conway about serious issues with the criminal justice system, and outdated IPP laws.

Marc Conway is the CEO at Fair Justice, an organisation which aims to get the voices of those who live and work within the criminal justice system, out and into the public.

He tells us, "I've been speaking with someone who got a two-year IPP [type of open-ended prison sentence] for stealing a mountain bike, because they pushed the person off, it was classed as a robbery; and they've been in prison for 18 years."

He continues, "When I explain this to people who are naive about it and I say, 'What country do you think that happens in?', they all say 'America' or 'Russia', and I say, 'Actually no it's happening here in the UK'.

"Ninety-one people who are serving that sentence have died by suicide. What that does to someone, when you're serving that [open-ended] sentence, is it takes away hope."
